Lucas Kent & Greta Rouge. Ghosts Don't Exist, Right?

Rocio Bonilla

Don't miss this gripping second instalment!

Greta, Federico and I had to invent something for the school science fair. I went to the library in search of a great idea, but what I found wasn't exactly inspiration. You won't believe what happened! I had to scarp out of there. If I told my friends that, I'd sound like a chicken, but come on, let's be real...

Ghosts don't exist, do they?

- A science fair challenge becomes the perfect excuse for teamwork, imagination, and learning.
- A cast of unique characters promoting empathy, self-acceptance, and friendship.
- Sharp, authentic dialogue that resonates with young readers.

In every family there's a black sheep... but what happens when, in a family full of black sheep, there's a white one?

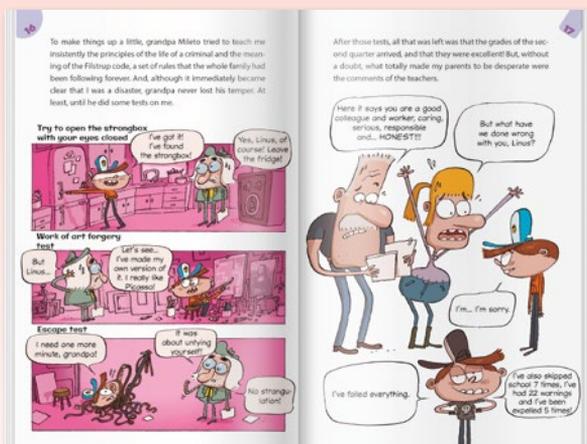

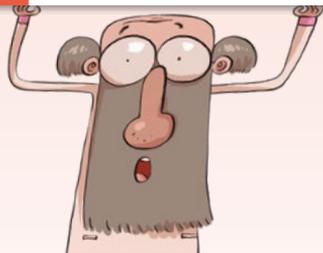

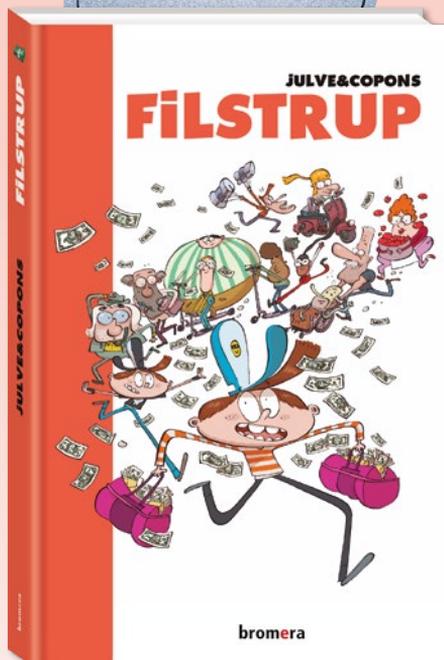

Meet Linus Filstrup: honest, decent, and completely out of place in a clan of legendary thieves.

Filstrup

Jaume Copons • Illustrated by Òscar Julve

Linus Filstrup comes from a family of renowned thieves... but he's the odd one out. Until he's accused of a huge school heist. To clear his name, he'll have to find the real culprit, and maybe earn his place in the family legacy.

A wildly funny and fast-paced graphic novel that blends satire, mystery, and emotional depth.

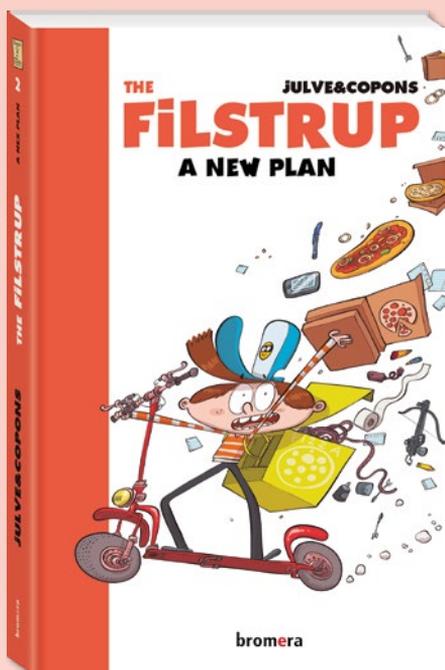

- A brilliant twist on the “black sheep” trope packed with outrageous humour, absurd plot twists, and a cast of eccentric characters.
- A graphic novel that explores identity, loyalty, and the pressure to fit in
- A story that balances slapstick comedy with sharp social commentary and emotional intelligence.
